A note on the floorplan:

This year's floorplan is in the same venue as ANM8 and ANM7—however, the layout has been reversed. The first ballroom is the lecture hall, the next two ballrooms are the exhibit halls. (Previously, the first two ballrooms were exhibitors, the last the plenary sessions.) In terms of layout, the plan is identical, it's just the entrance doors will be slightly different than the last two ANM conferences. NB: There are no pillars in the exhibit hall.

A note on booking multiple booths:

Twin or double end booths on the aisles are not available as pairs. An eight foot high back-wall runs down the centre of the six middle blocks and must remain in place. Twin booths are available, if desired, as side-by-side booths. For example, 202 and 204 could be booked together for one company. 204 and 105 could not be booked together for one company. Twin or multiple booths are also available along the perimeter. Sorry for the inconvenience, but we must preserve the floorplan as presented in the prospectus.
